in August that warned China was likely to surpass the United States this year in the number of new infections. The market for AIDS drugs was more than $2 billion in China last year, with estimates of between 150,000 and 180,000 people infected. "Although some people may feel confused and depressed because of some reports on AIDS, the number of people who get AIDS is very small, and the actual number is less than tens of thousands," said Jin Renliang, head of the State Administration for Market Regulation. "I think it will be less of a problem in the future."
